iCitizen
Civic Literacy for Young Americans

iCitizen: Civic Literacy for Young Americans is a civics curriculum ebook that will equip your highschool student with the practical and historical knowledge every American needs to be an engaged citizen.

The course highlights topics such as the purpose of the Constitution, the structure of America's government and economic system, the role of American diplomacy, expressions of patriotism, and provides an introduction to American parties and politics. iCitizen is perfect as a half-credit, stand-alone civics course for high school students or excellent preparation for accelerated middle school students.

As the nation is impacted by the Coronavirus, families are searching for alternate ways to help their students learn and grow. To assist parents in this endeavor, we have decided to give away GenJ's iCitizen civics course (valued at $49.99) at no cost for a limited time. In addition to the textbook, you will also receive the Teacher's Edition which contains practical suggestions on how to implement the course as well as answers to the quizzes.
